

Farewell and Presentation to Mrs. T. E. Mudiman

About 25 friends gathered at the home of Mrs. J. J. Murray on Wednesday afternoon to bid farewell to Mrs. T. E. Mudiman, who with her husband, Sgt. Mudiman, and daughters Irene and Charlotte, leave shortly to reside in Lethbridge.

A beautifully framed picture of Crow's Nest Mountain, a masterpiece of Mr. Gushul, was presented to the guest of honor by Mrs. J. A. McDonald, who referred to Mrs. Mudiman's literary ability and the recent honor that came to her in winning the Writers' Club prize for the best story submitted of some locality in southern Alberta.

Mrs. Mudiman responded and thanked the assembled guests for this remembrance and also for the friendship and kindness shown to herself and family during six years residence in Blairmore.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Meffan, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. MacPherson and Mrs. Penn.

DEFEATING DISEASE

In twenty years Canada has cut her death rate from Diphtheria from 900 per year to only 270 per year, and, the health statisticians report, the rate is still falling.

These and other gains on the health front are credited to the effective campaigns waged to have children immunized against disease. Protection is afforded by science against such diseases as Diphtheria, Whooping Cough, and Scarlet Fever. Authorities declare that it is the duty of all parents to have their children immunized early in life.

FACTORY LAUNDRY

A machine which makes possible a factory laundry service as an additional welfare factor to increase production is now being taken up by industrialists in Britain. At present 78 per cent of all washing is done in the home. If, therefore, the woman worker is able to have her washing done at the factory for a nominal sum, she will not only be relieved of an arduous household drudgery, but factory absenteeism, due to the wash-day, will be greatly reduced. A Bradford firm of wool manufacturers have already instituted a laundry service in order to eliminate "Monday absenteeism." The employees bring their laundry to work with them, hand it in, and collect it the same evening, washed, dried and ready for ironing.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

The Cowley school observed the 20th, Princess Elizabeth's wedding day, as a holiday.

Neil Nicholson entertained the men's bridge club at his home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evashen were Calgary visitors over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Nemeth were week-end visitors to Lethbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jordan were visitors to Macleod over the week end.

Over the week end a 48-hour blizzard swept over this district, piling a fresh-fallen snow in drifts, making travel difficult on blacked highways and on Monday a chinook wind was prevalent here, melting the snow in its wake.

Billie Legarde and Harold King have returned from a big-game hunt deep in the mountain pass, bringing back two elk of unusual size and two mule deer, which they bagged on Ditch Creek. They intended hunting for mountain sheep also, but found the snow too deep to indulge in this rare and exciting sport. They boys were away two weeks.

One of the prettiest wedding of the year took place in St. John's Anglican church, Pincher Creek, on Friday, November 21, when Robina, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hewitt, of North Fork, became the bride of Mr. Penhold John Peterson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Peterson, of Hesketh. Reverend Cyril Clark officiated and Mrs. F. A. Tustian was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was exquisite in a floor-length gown of white satin in princess style with nylon yoke, and trailing veil with a coronet of orange blossoms, and the bouquet of pink and white carnations which she carried, completed her array. Miss Bessie Vroom, the bridesmaid, wore a floor-length tropical rose jersey accordion pleated dress with white chapel veil and carried a bouquet of deep red carnations. Miss Edith Hewitt, only sister of the bride, as maid of honor, chose a floor-length gown of blue net over sheer, princess style, with white chapel veil and bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Douglas Hewitt, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. James Hewitt, the bride's cousin, was usher.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hewitt, uncle and aunt of the bride, in Pincher Creek. A four-tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table. Forty guests were present.

The young couple will spend their honeymoon at points in the United States and on their return will reside on the groom's ranch at Hesketh.

"I see, dear," remarked the wife, reading from her newspaper, "that a woman has been awarded 2000 dollars for the loss of a thumb. I shouldn't have thought a thumb was as valuable as that."

"Perhaps she kept her husband under it," grinned her husband.

What You Should Know About Travel Rationing

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Announcement by the Minister of Finance November 17th of a number of short term emergency measures designed to protect Canada's U.S. dollar reserves, included the announcement of "travel rationing."

Mr. Abbott stated that a limit of $150 U.S. was being placed on funds for the use of any Canadian for pleasure travel during the next twelve months. He added that, "We take this step reluctantly since it limits the friendly contacts between our people and our neighbors to the south, but we simply cannot afford the large sums of U.S. dollars that Canadians are spending in pleasure travel."

Although figures are not available for Canadian travel in the United States for 1947, it is known that in 1946 Canadians spent approximately $131 millions in this way. It is estimated that travel during 1947 will run about twenty per cent above this total. These large totals compare with the highest pre-war year for Canadian travel across the line of around $80 millions.

Not all this expenditure, of course, is due to pleasure travel alone. But it is expected that the imposition of rationing on pleasure travel may result in a saving of $30 millions to $40 millions in U.S. exchange.

It is reported that, in addition to the reluctance expressed by the Minister of Finance in applying travel restrictions, there is some concern over possible reaction of Americans to the move. It is hoped that American residents will understand the underlying reason and will not assume that Canadian hospitality is being arbitrarily refused. In this connection, it is known that approximately one-third of the travel between Canada and the United States takes place in response to the desire to visit relatives. It is pointed out that this presents an opportunity to Canadian citizens to explain to American friends and relatives why Canadians will have to forego extensive visits to them in the immediate future. At the same time, a warm invitation could be extended to them to visit Canada. It is emphasized that every personal effort should be made to maintain tourist traffic to Canada at a time when it is so important.

Other details of the travel restrictions announced by Mr. Abbott reveal that the special needs of business men and of those who travel for health or educational reasons have been taken into account. Funds for business travel may be obtained in reasonable amounts but the application for these funds must bear the certification of the employer that this travel is required in his business interests. Applications for travel in connection with health must be accompanied by a medical report on a form available at banks which is then sent in to the Foreign Exchange Control Board for consideration. The Department of National Health and Welfare will act as advisor to the Foreign Exchange Control Board in reviewing these medical reports.

An allowance of $100 per year is made for children in addition to the allowance of $150 per year for adults for the purpose of pleasure travel. There is no restriction on the number of trips provided that these amounts are not exceeded.

The familiar form H permit must be obtained by any resident wishing to take out of Canada more than $10 U.S. or more than $25 in both U.S. and foreign currencies. Any portion of U.S. funds not spent during the visit must be exchanged for Canadian currency immediately on return to Canada, but no credit can be given for such returns against the annual travel

SOUTH AFRICAN FOOD FOR BRITAIN

Britain is to import $48 million worth of food annually from South Africa during the next three years. This was announced recently by the Minister of food when giving details of the arrangements made between the two countries under the loan agreement recently concluded. The commodities which South Africa will be sending next year include eggs, canned fish, fruit, wine and potatoes. The largest item will be consignments of fresh fruit worth $24.8 million, consisting of grapefruit, oranges, lemons, pears, plums, nectarines, peaches, apricots and grapes.

Inland Sea Which Sank

The gypsum deposits of New Brunswick among the purest in the world are believed to have resulted from the sinking of an inland sea which once existed in and surrounding the well-known Bay of Fundy.

This sea probably had a very narrow outlet to what is now the Atlantic Ocean. The subsidence was slow and led in certain parts to the evaporation of sea water which in turn caused the formation of deposits of gypsum and salt over a large area.

The climate then, seems to have changed and mud and detritus were carried into the region by rivers. Fish died and became buried in the mud that now forms the shale which characterizes the gypsum areas, where perfectly formed fossilized fish are commonly found to-day.

Bob Barnhill is confined to his home through illness.

ration in case of later trips.

It is further stated by the Foreign Exchange Control Board that citizens wishing to take short trips across the border when they will be taking out not more than $25 including not more than $10 U.S. may obtain up to $10 U.S. in each calendar month for this purpose. This "border-crossing ration" will not be charged against the annual ration of $150 U.S.

Permits are also required for the use of sterling funds for travel. According to the Foreign Exchange Control Board, applications for such permits in reasonable amounts are normally approved.

Canadians contemplating trips to the United States should also keep in mind that the new import restrictions govern any personal purchases they wish to bring back with them.

No personal purchases of goods will be admitted which are now prohibited from importation or which may only be imported under quota. The list of these import restrictions is an extensive one and it would be wise, therefore, for anyone contemplating a particular purchase to enquire from Customs Officials beforehand if such a purchase will be admitted.

Finance Department Sets Up Division for Import Restrictions

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The Hon. Douglas Abbott, minister of finance, last week announced the establishment of a separate division of his department which will deal specifically with the new import restrictions applied as part of Canada's emergency plan to conserve United States dollars.

K. W. Taylor, Assistant Deputy Minister of the department, is heading the new division which is receiving applications for quotas from Canadian firms on those items on which partial restrictions have been imposed and is also dealing with border-line cases where there are some unusual circumstances.

In announcing the dollar-saving plan on November 17, Mr. Abbott said importation of some consumer goods would be prohibited and that imports of other consumer goods would be restricted by the imposition of quotas. In the case of capital goods, possible restrictions depend on the recommendation of the Minister of Reconstruction and Supply.

The list of items to be prohibited includes such goods as jewellery, candy, novelties, typewriters, radios, refrigerators, washing machines and furniture. The import of motor vehicles will also be prohibited temporarily with the expectation of later placing this item on a quota basis.

Goods which are to be restricted by import quotas include, in the fruit and vegetable category, such items as oranges, grapefruit, lemons, fruit juices, potatoes, apples, and onions. However, imports of almost all out-of-season fresh fruits and vegetables, and almost all kinds of canned goods are to be prohibited. No restrictions applied to bananas, raisins, figs and prunes.

In textiles, no restrictions are placed on raw materials or yarns but almost all other textiles are to be placed on a quota basis. A third group of goods, including all leathers, all kinds of footwear, gloves, leather garments and luggage, and a fourth group of miscellaneous items, such as clocks and watches, cutlery, games, toys and sporting goods, and smokers' supplies, will also be under quota.

PERSPIRING FEET

Although perspiring feet are sometimes individual characteristics about which little can be done, health authorities say that excessive perspiration is often due to the wearing of shoes which do not permit air to circulate around the feet.

Advice for counteracting this unhealthy and uncomfortable condition includes frequent bathing of the feet and the use of a foot powder. Those using public bathrooms and showers should take special care of their feet in order to avoid infection.

Displaced Persons Must Fulfill Their Part of the Bargain

Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of labor, stated November 14, that he wished to deny a rumor that immigrants to Canada from Displaced Persons Camps in Germany might change their employment here by merely refunding the costs of their transportation to this country.

Mr. MacNamara said it should be clearly understood by displaced persons now in Canada that they are under distinct obligation to remain in the employment for which they volunteered and were selected for a period of three months to a year. He said that he wished to deny any rumors to the contrary which were being spread by some of the displaced persons and their friends.

Mr. MacNamara explained that one of the rumors brought to his attention recently by an employer of a young woman from a displaced persons camp, was that displaced persons could be released from serving in their present employment if a reliable sponsor would pay all the costs of transportation which had been incurred on their behalf, thereby allowing them to seek other employment.

The deputy minister said: "I point out that these men and women, of their own free will, entered into an agreement which it is expected that they shall carry out. If there had been any doubt about it, they would still be in Germany. Some circumstances may arise in individual cases where special consideration will be freely given for changes in employment, but these prospective new Canadians and their friends must recognize the obligations to fulfill an agreement."

Mr. MacNamara stated that every precaution was being taken to ensure that displaced persons would be placed in suitable employment in Canada in conditions no less favorable than Canadians enjoy in similar occupations, but that it was not intended that this project should be used by immigrants from displaced persons camps as only a means of getting into Canada and immediately proceeding to the open employment market. By careful selection on an occupational basis, Canadian industries had pressed for labor were being assured of assistance while at the same time those selected were being assured of employment until they had established themselves in this country. The agreement into which the displaced persons entered was as much for their protection as the employer's, who paid the transportation from Halifax to the place of employment. Mr. MacNamara pointed out.

A Threat Of Disaster

A NUMBER OF FACTORS ARE CONTRIBUTING to the present unstable world conditions. Clashes in political ideologies are receiving a great deal of attention, and equally alarming are the threats of widespread economic disaster. A report recently made public in Washington by the International Emergency Food Council warned that "the twin problems of food and dollar shortages could result in world economic collapse, if not chaos." Thirty-five nations are represented on this council, which serves mainly as an agency to allocate scarce foods fairly in areas where there are serious shortages. The report, which deals with the present world food situation, was far from encouraging and carried a strong note of warning against impending disaster.

Less Food But More People

Attention was drawn to the fact that there are now 200,000,000 more people to feed than there were before the war, but in spite of this, food production is now ten per cent. less than the per capita world production before the war. In addition, due to a decline in the food output in some countries, the supplies this year are from two to three per cent. less than those of last year. Less grain, hay and potatoes were produced in Europe this season, while there was a decline in the corn crop in the United States. At the same time, smaller food crops were produced in India and several other countries which import much of their food supply. It was also reported that Europe is "desperately short of food for its livestock at a time when that continent is striving to rebuild its livestock industry."

Supplies Sent From Canada

As a remedy for the approaching crisis the report suggested the utmost in co-operation, both national and international, in the matter of producing and distributing food. It is distressing to most people to realize that while the food consumption per capita on this continent is the highest in the world, in some parts of Europe and Asia it is at starvation levels. Canada has contributed largely to the world food supply during the years when the need in Europe and Asia has been so great, and the grain, meat and other supplies sent from here have brought relief in many distressed areas. This continent is one of the few sources of abundant food supply in these times and it is to be hoped that, in co-operation with other producing countries, means may be found of averting a collapse such as the Emergency Food Council warns us may now be impending.

Immigrants To Canada Total 32,028

Decrease Of 14,226 From Corresponding Period Of Last Year

OTTAWA.—A total of 32,028 immigrants came to Canada from various countries during the six-month period ended Sept. 30, but the figure was 14,226 below that for the corresponding period of 1944, the resources department reported.

The decrease might be traced to the dropping off of heavy movements of dependents of servicemen from overseas.

Meanwhile, another department announcement said that with the arrival in Canada of 563 displaced persons aboard the S.S. General Stewart, the total number of displaced persons entering the Dominion so far will be raised to 5,757.

Of the latest number, 1,385 are people brought to Canada under the provisions of the close relatives scheme, 113 are orphan children being adopted by families in all parts of the country, and 4,259 are workers admitted in groups in response to requests by Canadian industry.

Of the 4,259 workers, 3,489 have been engaged by lumber companies, 563 are domestics who have been employed in institutions and homes, 100 are textile workers, 500 railroad workers and 75 miners.

However, Belgian, Danish, Dutch, Finnish, French, German, Icelandic, Norwegian, Swedish and Swiss immigrants totalled 3,509 compared with 3,732.

From all other races came 4,570 immigrants compared with 1,277 a year ago.

The 32,000 total for this year was broken down as follows: adult males, 15,711; adult females, 12,071; children under 18, 6,198.

Destination by provinces of the immigrants to Western Canada, most of whom were farmers, unskilled, semi-skilled or skilled workers, trading class workers, miners, and domestics, was:

Ontario, 17,566; Manitoba, 1,213; Saskatchewan, 1,997; Alberta, 1,687; British Columbia, 4,399; Yukon Territory, 21; and Northwest Territories, six.

WINTER HAIRCUT

Why a horse's hair is clipped in winter, while we put on overcoats, is not generally known.

The reason is that the animal's heavy coat is Nature's provision for winter in a state of sheltered freedom. When wild or at liberty, horses do not constantly exert themselves by galloping, their grating habits make it necessary for them to move slowly. Moreover, they have to lie in the open, so the heavy covering which the horse possesses in autumn is essential to health and comfort.

When horses are set to work, however, their efforts make them hot. If they were blanketed in a great mantle of hair they would sweat intolerably and then, having to stand still for intervals, would run the risk of catching chills before their coats dried.

So their coats are clipped for comfort while at work, and a rug is thrown over their loins when they are standing in the open in harness and at night they are given blankets to take the place of Nature's protective covering.

Our issue this week is unavoidably late in appearing. One of our workmen, W. B. Hodgins, on Monday had the misfortune to have the two middle fingers of his right hand badly crushed in the job press and is now under the doctor's care. This leaves us short-handed at present.

The Laughing Jackass

An individual in the Kingdom of Birds is the Australian Kookaburra or "Laughing Jackass." It is a cousin to the Canadian Kingfisher but much larger and differently colored. From beak to tail it measures eighteen inches, has a dark brown crest, olive brown back and wings, and white breast and under portions.

One of the peculiarities of the female Kookaburra is that she does not build a nest, but lays her eggs in the decayed hollow of a Gum (or eucalyptus) tree.

The Kookaburra has a throaty laugh, which starts as a low chuckle and wells up to the proportions of real mirth. To hear one laugh is to laugh yourself.

About a year ago a group of Kookaburras was shipped to Hollywood so that the Movie Sound Equipment could record the birds' laughter as they were filmed for inclusion in a movie with an Australian plot.

As technicians erected the sound apparatus the big birds laughed delightedly, but as soon as the Director cried "Okay for sound!" they lapsed into disconcerting silence and no amount of inducement could exact a single chuckle. In disgust the movie men dismantled their apparatus for the day, and at once the Kookaburras broke out into rude derisive peals of laughter. Their laughs were finally captured on celluloid and sound-track, but only after many efforts had been made.

Facts About Glue

The man who invented, or discovered, glue was a benefactor to the race, although he may not have understood just what his discovery meant. But the date of the discovery is uncertain. We know, however, that the ancient Egyptians used glue, and on an old stone carving, dating back to the times of Thomas III, fifteen hundred years before Christ was born, there is a picture of a workman with a brush in his hand applying glue to a wooden base, while the glue pot is plainly depicted on the fire near by. Animal glue was the first made, and it may shock some people to learn that the gelatin they enjoy is practically the same as glue, only prepared somewhat differently. Fish glue is all right, but its sticking power is not quite as strong as its odor. The glue for airplanes is made from casein, which was also known in ancient days.

What You Should Know about TRAVEL RATIONING

Why?

Canada's supply of U.S. dollars will no longer stretch far enough to permit all the purchases of goods and services or all the travel in the United States that has taken place in the past. It is, therefore, necessary to reduce our expenditures of U.S. dollars in many different ways. As one of these steps, the Government has decided that the use of U.S. dollars for pleasure travel spending must be reduced. To ensure this reduction in a way that is fair to all, an annual "travel ration" has been established. As in the past — a Form H permit is required by anyone taking out of Canada more than $10 U.S. or more than a total of $25 in Canadian and foreign currencies.

Pleasure Travel

Regulations now provide that the maximum amount of U.S. dollars which any Canadian resident may obtain for pleasure travel purposes is $150 per year. In the case of children of eleven years and under, the amount is $100. There is no restriction on the number of trips as long as this annual allotment is not exceeded. Any U.S. dollars obtained for one trip and not used on that trip must be brought back to Canada and exchanged for Canadian dollars at a bank immediately on return. No credit for these funds can be allowed against the annual ration for subsequent trips.

Personal Purchases of U.S. Goods

A Canadian tourist should remember that the new restrictions applying to imports from the United States govern his personal purchases there. He may not bring back any merchandise which has now been prohibited or which may now only be imported on a quota basis. The list of goods covered by the new import restrictions is an extensive one. Tourists contemplating any particular purchase in the United States would be wise, before leaving the country, to ask Canadian Customs Officials if this purchase will be admitted.

MOTHER'S MILK

Pointing to the Dionne quintuplets as examples of the value of mother's milk, medical authorities stress the importance of natural feeding for infants. It is stated that the quints owe their survival, at least in some degree, to the breast milk rushed to their home from far off points soon after their birth.

In some United States breast milk centres, human milk is sold for as much as 35 cents an ounce—or about Seven Dollars a quart. Medical science places great store by mother's milk.

HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

Approximately 60% of children entering schools in Canada, these days show one or more physical defects, according to carefully-compiled statistics.

Medical and public health authorities are urging on parents the importance of pre-school medical examinations. "Be sure to give the child a chance for success in studies and in sport, by remedying any minor defects which would otherwise be a handicap," one medical authority advises parents. "Have the family doctor examine your child now, to detect, and correct, any minor troubles."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE PURSUED

By JOHN H. CHAVE

The street was poorly lighted, but here and there a streetlamp sparkled in the rain. Halfway to the party at the Randolphs, Maria Williams saw the headlights of a car coming slowly behind her. I wonder, she asked herself, could that be Ed? Perhaps he had relented and had come after her, was trying to find her on the way. He was going to be kind about her storming out of the house after their foolish quarrel at the dinner-table. She must have hurt him deeply when she had said "All right, Ed, if you won't come to the Randolphs with me tonight, I'll go to the party myself, even if I have to walk!" She had flashed her hazel eyes at him. "And Jim Fowler will see that I get home—if I do come back."

Now she felt remorseful, walking alone through the rain, utterly miserable.

Her good coat seemed now quite as bedraggled as her hair. Her nose, she thought, needed a touch of powder, and her eyes smarted with tears that the scattered raindrops only partly concealed.

Maria looked back over her shoulder, and saw to her disappointment that she did not recognize the car. It seemed to be following her, so she began to walk more quickly.

Alarming thoughts raced through her head as she remembered how the papers were full of stories about purse-snatching and worse. It had been anger rather than courage that had led her out on such a night. She clutched her purse and drew her coat more tightly around her. She still had a long block to go.

Even when she quickened her pace the car kept along beside her, its headlights shining like a torch on the wet pavement. Suddenly she was furious that Ed had allowed her to go out in the rain when taxis were just not to be had. She had always been impetuous, and in the unreasonable bitterness of this, their first quarrel, neither had taken time to think.

The hood of the car was level with her now. She was afraid to look into the car. "I must not run!" she repeated to herself. "Perhaps they will drive on. I'll just go along and mind my own business. But I do wish I'd worn my raincoat!"

The car stopped, and three tall men jumped out. In a panic, Maria ran up the steps of the nearest house and pounded on the door.

"Well, what do you want?" asked one of the men. "Who are you looking for?"

"Anything we can do for you?" asked another as he took out his latch-key and opened the door just as the woman reached it.

"Oh," exclaimed Maria. "Oh, my goodness! You live here?"

"Who's this, Frank?" asked the gray-haired woman. "I thought it was a stag-party you're having tonight."

"I don't know who it is, Mother," said the man she called Frank. "Never saw her before."

"Oh, I must have the wrong number," said Maria. "I've made a mistake." She was trembling as she backed away, frightened and embarrassed. "I must be on my way."

She started down the steps. The woman with the gray hair called to her. "Come in and have a cup of tea with us," she invited. "The kettle's on, and it will just take a minute." She looked down the street. "You must be soaked in this rain."

"Well, thank you," said Maria. The woman poured the tea and set out cups in the kitchen. "My son's having a few friends in for cards," she said. "The cup 's not very steady in Mario's hand, but the warm, sweet tea revived her spirits."

"You seem frightened, my dear," said the woman. "Frank can drive you home."

"I thought I was being followed," admitted Maria, "but I couldn't impose on you further."

"I don't like to see you start out again alone, my dear," said the woman. Her gray eyes were kind. She eyed the ring on Maria's finger.

"Would you like to telephone from here? I doubt if you could find a taxi on a night like this, but perhaps your husband..."

"Yes, I would like to phone," interrupted Maria. "I was just on my way to a party a couple of blocks from here."

As she sat down at the telephone in the hall she thought of how she had been about to phone Jim Fowler before she left the house, knowing he would have been glad to drive over and pick her up. She could have used some of his sympathy after her words with Ed! After a moment she began to dial a number. Outside the rain was still splashing on the panes.

Then, impulsively, she put her hand down on the instrument and dialed a different number. She had to let the phone ring for several seconds. Her face lit up as someone answered.

"Hello, my Darling," she said. "Please, can you come for me? No, I'm fine." She turned to the woman for the address and gave it on the phone. "Thanks, Dearest," she said. "Yes, I'll wait here for you."

She was smiling as she hung up.

A few minutes later a car drove up in front of the house and a man in a raincoat and a brown hat came up to the door. Maria went out on the porch to meet him.

The gray-haired woman followed her. "Thank you so much," Maria said to her. "I don't know your name, but I would like you to meet my husband Ed Williams."

"The Mrs. Hubby," said the woman. "I'm glad I was able to help you. Sorry you had such an experience."

"It wasn't so bad," said Maria. "I'll never forget this evening—never."

She held tightly to Ed's arm as they walked to the car.

Very Old House Now Has Modern Lighting

GRANVILLE FERRY, N.S.—After 245 years of candle light and kerosene lamps, one of the oldest houses in Nova Scotia had its first glimmer of the incandescent miracle here as workmen put the finishing touches to an electric lighting system.

John L. Amberman, the 52-year-old owner whose great-great-grandfather built the house in 1762, said he would have had the job done long ago except that he and his wife were afraid it would detract from the beauty of the home.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Why do some men achieve greater success than others? The reason is not so much because some men have greater natural aptitudes and abilities, but because they have developed greater thinking power.

To learn to think, learn first to concentrate. This takes constant practice. All of us tend to be mentally lazy. When we try to think about any subject, our minds persist in wandering. So we must keep yanking our thoughts back on the track.

Practice thinking for 15 minutes every day about Canada's role in international affairs, television, how to improve radio programs, or any other subject you may choose. Stay with it and, if possible, reach some original conclusions.

You will find that, just as you can build muscle by exercise, so you can increase your thinking power. And you will have taken an important step toward greater personal success.

It may pay you to concentrate today on the subject of bringing your life insurance up to date. Your circumstances may have changed in recent years so that your insurance no longer meets your present needs. Adjust it periodically with the help of a good agent.
